

1. Always make sure to follow the instructions—both those provided on the assignment sheet and provided face-to-face during class or office hours—completely.
2. Always make sure to demonstrate critical thinking, analysis, clarity, accuracy, and organization throughout.
3. For response assignments, quotations should NOT be used. A few words, occasionally, might be okay, but the focus on this type of assignment is a concise response to the readings and to the specific assignment at hand. Any more than a few words occasionally will be subtracted from the required length.

For major papers (an analysis of a source, situation, article, etc.), a few, brief quotations are acceptable, if the quoted material is said so well it cannot possibly be paraphrased or if the quoted material is from a primary source and is critical to your analysis.

For history research papers, naturally, more quotations will be necessary. Quotations should always be analyzed and explained.

When quoting material, always use double quotation marks. Always remember your voice—not the voice of others—should guide the paper.

4. Spelling, grammar, and format count—use formal prose and diction. “I,” “you,” “we” and similar pronouns should not be used in most cases. Please avoid contractions (e.g., “can’t”), too. Clichés should be avoided like the plague! Superfluous diction should be omitted. Students frequently misuse semicolons, commas, and other such punctuation. Please do not assume you know how to use these correctly: Take time to review the rules.
5. Watch out for tense. Historical statements use past tense. Discussions of “literature” (what an author says or what characters do) go in present tense. Using past tense is needed when discussing history—past tense is not the same as passive voice, which should be avoided except in some types of scientific writing.
6. Always include thorough introductions and conclusions. Use paragraphs. Do not use the “five paragraph essay” format.
7. Always include captions for images. (In Word, you can right click on an image and click insert caption.)
8. Unless otherwise stated: Papers should be double spaced. The font should be black Times New Roman size 12. The margin size should be one-inch on all four sides. There should be one space between sentences. The paper should be left justified. Pages should be numbered in the top right-hand corner.
9. Make sure to write at least the required length (going over is fine). This is a big pet peeve. Length requirements do not include any images (or captions) or bibliographic data.
10. You are welcome to use MLA, APA, Chicago, or with permission, another style for citing sources, but whichever style is used must be used correctly – this includes spacing, periods, as well as when/how authors, titles, pages, and dates are listed.

In MLA there is a “Works Cited” page, in APA a “References” page, and in Chicago a “Bibliography.” (See <https://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/section/2/> for specifics or the detailed handbook for each style.)

Make sure to do parenthetical citations correctly, too.

Please double check with a credible source because students frequently list sources incorrectly.

11. Remember that primary sources provide direct information of some kind; secondary sources are about primary sources. Which a source is can depend on how the source is being used. Scholarly sources are those by people with a doctorate and published in a peer-reviewed publication. The U.H. M.D. Anderson Library has thousands of scholarly books and online articles. For specific guides:

 - b. Queer Studies: <http://guides.lib.uh.edu/c.php?g=433166> and http://guides.lib.uh.edu/HIST4394_LGBT
 - c. Religious Studies: <http://guides.lib.uh.edu/religion>
 - d. The best database of all time: <http://www.jstor.org.ezproxy.lib.uh.edu>
12. A creative title is always required for out-of-class work. This is another pet peeve. ☺ This title should not be underlined, in italics, in quotation marks, or in a different size/font: Use regular text.
13. The first line of your paper should be the centered creative title. The second line the beginning of your essay. Do not include your name, my name, class name, etc.
14. Dr. Pegoda will happily go over papers and provide feedback before the deadline so that students have an opportunity to write strong papers and to improve. Students seeking early feedback (or even help starting) should contact the professor as soon as possible, but at least 48 hours before the paper is due. However, students should keep in mind that if they completely ignore feedback provided—which happens surprisingly often—the assessment in question will be further penalized.
15. Unless otherwise stated: Papers must be submitted as a .doc or .docx file (.pdf is also acceptable). Do not submit papers in the “comments” box. You are welcome to use the comment box for any short notes, comments, concerns to me. Remember that work is only considered “submitted” when submitted online in the appropriate place(s). There is no late work.
16. Papers are always graded holistically—with attention to content, style, mechanics—but the overall focus is on clarity, originality, and overall effectiveness.

17. For students in First Year Writing, revisions for major essays are allowed—prior to the last day of class. If you are interested in doing a revision, you must communicate with Dr. Pegoda (preferably during office hours) before beginning the revision process. Then, spend time making substantial revisions. Before submitting the revised essay for regrading, write a statement detailing what was changed and why and what they learned through the revision process (this process is called “metacognition”). This statement should go on a new page at the end of the paper. Revisions are always submitted to the same box where the previous copy was submitted.
18. Take time to review various “rules” of writing.

 - Remember when discussing an article (or song), the article’s name goes in quotation marks only. When discussing a book or movie, the name goes in italics only. When discussing an author (or another person) use their full name the first time, and then, only their last name.
19. All questions should be discussed with Dr. Pegoda. Students are also welcome to get assistance at the U.H. M.D. Anderson Library, the Writing Center, or LAUNCH tutoring.
20. Revising the “Big Idea Writing Syllabus” might be helpful, too:
<https://andrewpegoda.com/2017/12/27/the-big-idea-writing-syllabus/>.
21. And a suggestion! I suggest you always stop in a bad place when writing. Yes, a bad place. Stop in the middle of a sentence or in the middle of developing an idea. That way, when you are ready to continue writing, you’ll be able to jump right back in.

Academic Honesty, AKA Cheating:

Students are expected to abide by the highest standards of academic honesty. For all course assessments, students are also prohibited from any form of cheating or plagiarism or the appearance of any form of cheating or plagiarism. Violations will usually result in an automatic "F" for the class. NO EXCEPTIONS. Note that this course uses plagiarism detection software. Students who stay on top of their studying, ask good questions, work ahead, and complete assignments as instructed should have no problem. For this course, students must always do their own work and must always clearly acknowledge the origin of all information.

Specifically, as per the Academic Honesty Pledge for this class, students agree to the follow conditions when submitting any work:

- I completed any required readings or viewings necessary for this assessment.
- I did my own research, using assistance only from librarians or Dr. Pegoda, if applicable. (It is acceptable to have a classmate, friend, or writing tutor read your completed paper and provide general feedback.)
- The ideas in this written work are mine and mine alone. When presenting others' ideas, I have cited them properly.
- I did not seek nor provide any assistance to other students in this course (current or former students) while preparing or writing this assessment beyond having another student read my completed paper and provide general feedback for final revisions.
- I did not buy this paper or pay someone to write this paper.
- I did not use any kind of paraphrasing website or tool that generates sentences or paragraphs.
- I did not reuse any work written by someone else or written by me for a different class or a class in a different semester or institution.
- I did not manipulate any fonts or margins in order to make my paper appear longer.
- I understand that if any part of this work is plagiarized or I violate any of the above points of the Academic Honesty Pledge, the penalties are potentially very severe, likely including a 0% on this assessment, an "F" for the semester, a report submitted to the university, and possible expulsion from the University of Houston.

Students who have questions should ask. Students are responsible for policies in the student handbook, as well as common sense. Again, however, students who study and do their own work, will be just fine.

Assessments that earn the grade of “A” have the characteristics described in the following sentences.

A

Assessments that earn the highest marks—first and foremost—shine in original, creative thinking. Such assessments teach the audience something new. They use and analyze primary sources and secondary texts, as appropriate, and this evidence is clearly and correctly cited. Paragraphs and effective transitions guide the reader. “A” assessments have a clear thesis, as appropriate. The conclusion is more than one paragraph and more than a basic summary of the paper. The writer uses active voice and avoids expletive sentence structure (e.g., “it is,” “there was”)

Audiences can read these works effortlessly, when it comes to aesthetics, diction, grammar, mechanics, and spelling, but they might have to pause and re-read a sentence occasionally when it comes to internalizing the ideas due to their emotional demands or originality.

They are entertaining and exciting to read. The “A” assessments follow instructions but take risks, too, and go above and beyond the stated expectations. The “A” paper is not “perfect”—no essay is—but it demonstrates careful thought and revision. Any errors do not take away from overall effectiveness.

B

Assessments that earn the grade of “B” sometimes exist in an odd limbo. Such “B” assessments do not necessarily have anything “wrong,” per se, but they generally lack various degrees of originality or more often, analysis—almost as if the writer did not fully finish what they were saying. Sometimes assessments earn a “B” because of substantial weaknesses in their analysis and evidence or in their presentation of ideas.

C

Assessments that earn the grade of “C” tend to just do (or partly do) the assessment but not fully engage with it. The sophistication of analysis, organization, prose, and so on is not at the same level as the “A” and “B” assessments. “C” assessments tend to rely more on generalizations, obvious statements, already-established ideas, dated sources, stiff transitions (i.e., “first,” “second”), clichés, and do not demonstrate a clear, personalized understanding of the topics. Assessments can also earn a “C” if they have substantial weaknesses in any of the areas outlined here or typically assessed, especially in terms of grammar/mechanics/style.

Assessments that are all one paragraph or that have formatting issues that prevent easy readable automatically earn no higher than a “C.”

D

Assessments scored at the “D” level typically show some very basic knowledge of some of the ideas at hand but also contain many factual mistakes or do not follow the instructions. Other times, the “D” indicates a paper that readers cannot understand because of numerous stylistic mistakes.

Papers that are 20% or more short of any requirement length can earn no higher than a “D.”

F

Assessments earn an “F” when there is a serious gap between the submitted work and the professor’s expectations. Typically, such occurs when students submit plagiarized work (which includes copying and pasting information, having too many quotations, etc.), submit work that is off topic or that indicates important concepts have not been grasped, work that readers cannot understand because of excessive stylistic mistakes, or submit work that is missing more than 50% of the required content.

Grading Sheet for Major Papers/Assessments

FIRST IMPRESSIONS

(creative title; appropriate font, format, layout, length; images with captions; submitted correctly/on-time; etc.)

INTRODUCTION/CONCLUSION

(begins/ends clearly and thoughtfully; thesis clearly stated; captures reader's attention; summarizes argument; leaves reader with something to think about; etc.)

STYLE: ORIGINALITY, CREATIVITY, AND PATHOS

(ideas and analysis go beyond the well-established ideas /the obvious; takes risks; explains significance; appropriate formality; avoids generalizations; etc.)

LOGOS: THESIS AND ARGUMENT

(everything works together to support clearly-defined, evidence-based thesis; arguments are free of logical fallacies or inaccuracies; etc.)

FOCUS, ORGANIZATION, AND CLARITY

(each paragraph has topic idea holding it together; paragraphs are closely and logically related, includes transitions; is not redundant; paper is on topic; etc.)

EVIDENCE, ANALYSIS, AND ETHOS

(uses quality/relevant evidence and analysis; evidence is analyzed and supports thesis; usually avoids quotations; information is "factually" accurate; proper citations, throughout and at end; topics ethically approached; appropriate development, etc.)

LINGUISTICS

(has regard for "correctness" and "conciseness"; sentences are clear, varied and structured; includes grammar and punctuation—especially commas, spelling, pronouns paragraphs, proper tense, word variety, word choice; etc.)
